And here is come to doe some villanous shame
To the dead bodies : I will apprehend him,
Stop thy vnhallowed toyle, vile Mountague :
Can vengeance be pursu'd further then death ?
Condemned Villaine, I doe apprehend thee.
Obey and goe with me, for thou must dye.
Ro. I must indeed, and therefore came I hither,
Good gentle youth, tempt not a desperate man,
Flye hence and leaue me, thinke vpon these gone,
Let them affright thee. I beseech thee Youth,
Put not another sinne vpon my head,
By vrging me to furie, O be gone,
By Heauen I loue thee better then my selfe,
For I come hither arm'd against my selfe :
Stay not, be gone, liue, and hereafter say,
A mad mans mercie bid thee runne away.
Par. I doe defie thy commiseration,
And apprehend thee for a Fellon here.
Ro. Wilt thou prouoke me? then haue at thee Boy.
Page O, Lord, they fight, I will goe call the watch.
Par. O I am slaine, if thou be mercifull,
Open the Tombe, lay me with Iuliet.
Ro. In faith I will, let me peruse this face,
Mercutio's Kinsman, Noble Countie Paris,
What said my man, when my betossed soule
Did not attend him as we rode? I thinke
He told me Paris should haue marryed Iuliet,
Said he not so? or did I dreame it so?
Or am I mad, hearing him talke of Iuliet,
To thinke it was so? O giue me thy hand,
One, writ with me in sowre misfortunes Booke.
Ile burie thee in a triumphant graue.
A Graue; O no, A Lanthorne; slaughtred Youth:
For here lyes Iuliet, and her beautie makes
This Vault a feasting presence full of light.
Death lye thou there by a dead man interd,
How oft when men are at the point of death,

Haue they beene merrie? which their Ke
A lightning before death? Oh how may
Call this a Lightning? O my Loue, my W
Death that hath sucke the Honey of thy
Hath had no power yet vpon thy beaut
Thou art not conquer'd, beauties ensign
Is Crimson in thy lips, and in thy cheeke
And Deaths pale flag is not aduanced th
Tibalt lyest thou there in thy bloudy shee
O what more fauour can I doe to thee,
Then with that hand that cut thy youth
To sunder his that was thine enemie?
Forgiue me Couzen. Ah deare Iuliet.
Why art thou yet so faire? I will beleeu
Shall I beleeue, that vnsubstantiall death
And that the leane abhorred Monster ke
Thee here in darke to be his Paramour?
For feare of that, I still will stay with th
And neuer from this palace of dimme ni
Depart againe; here, here will I remayn
With Wormes that are thy Chamberma
Will I set vp my euerlasting rest :
And shake the yoke of inauspicious star
From this World-wearied flesh, eyes loo
Armes take your last embrace : And lip
The doores of breath, seale with a righ
A dateleſſe bargaine to ingrossing death
Come bitter conduct, come vnsauourie
Thou desperate Pilot, now at once run
The dashing Rockes, thy Sea-sicke wea
Here's to my Loue. O true Apothecary
Thy Drugs are quicke. Thus with a kiss

Enter Frier with Lanthorne, Cr

Fri. Saint Francis be my speed, how
Haue my old feet stumbled at graues? W

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE Romeo and Juliet (STC 22325a) LONDON, 1622 THE BODLEIAN LIBRARY (Arch. G e.25